AI isn't closing the gap. It's widening it.

AI was supposed to level the playing field. For small businesses, the opposite is happening.

“

Every owner knows they need short videos and posters. But they can't shoot, edit or write — and outsourcing costs hundreds per video. Content cost is the trap that keeps small businesses offline.

Can't make it

Shooting, editing and copywriting are three professional skills. Owners have none of them — and no time to learn.

Can't afford it

Outsourcing a single short video costs hundreds of dollars. Daily content blows far past a small shop's budget.

Can't use the tools

Today's AI video tools expect prompts, storyboards and editing skills — just another barrier for owners.

Fill in a few blanks. Get a finished video.

Ready to post — no skills, no prompts, no editing.

Users shouldn't have to climb over the barrier — we remove it. Model orchestration, prompt engineering and workflow design are all handled by the platform, so there is nothing to learn.
